That business can be revived speedily if values are given prospective purchasers and that newspaper advertising is the most powerful medium of carrying trade news to the people are declarations of Charles B. Dulcan, vice president and general merchandise manager of The Hecht company of Washington. In a recent statement he declared:

"Newpaper advertising has again proved that it is the most powerful and effective advertising medium. The results are direct and instantaneous.

"For the past week thousands of stores throughout America have conducted drives for increased business because they seemed, in some mysterious way, to have reached the conclusion that prices were at low ebb, whereas savings accounts indicated that there was money to spend for goods that had dropped way below normal.

"Our own concern took this view, increased its advertising and as a result we have sold more goods every single day this past week than in our best previous year. Specifically, since last Monday we have increased our business 30 per cent in dollars and cents; we have sold 44 per cent more items in this week than in the corresponding week, 1930. We have given employment to 10 per cent more people. We showed a tenfold increase in our long distance wires and buyers' trips to New York. We placed more orders; shipments arriving at the store were increased 20 per cent. We have stopped going down."

A federal employment agent located at Grand Forks, N. D., reports this experience: "Last week in Grand Forks the lady in charge of city poor relief estimated 500 unemployed here and still I could not get 12 potato pickers from the local growd to go out. The woman who reported the 500 unemployed must have had in mind a lot of married women, a lot of children and a lot of men who would work only if they could pick their job and name the wage. * * * Out in front of my office I just heard some of the box car babies arguing. One insisted that the government should list the unemployed. A second said: 'What is to prevent me registering here in Grand Forks this week as unemployed, grabbing a freight train and doing the same thing this week in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Duluth, and Chicago? Then I could get a freight and do the same thing in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Washington. It would show an army of unemployed and it would only be me."

There is no cure for the world-wide dilemma of overproduction that is so direct and so effective as high wages. To say that the world produces more than it can consume is absurd. Demands of the human race are unlimited. This is a crisis of distribution. Since the depression began prices have been falling. If wages are maintained the disparity between production and purchasing power must soon be adjusted.

Oceanographers early this year, from their laboratory at La Jolla, issued their prediction of a dry winter. One of their most important gadgets must have slipped a cog, don't you think?

Meanwhile, it is said that the population gain of Sing Sing prison this year over last year is 26 per cent. Sing Sing must have a good Chamber of Commerce.

WOMAN'S CLUB, PUNDITA TO HEAR HAWAIAN TALK

Following recent storms, a section of the beach at Waikiki, Hawaii, was transplanted to the Press office window, where it came to rest and is attracting considerable attention.

In conjunction with this display is the announcement that an illustrated lecture on the "South Seas" will be given in the Community Hall Friday evening, Jan. 8, by Mrs. D. V. Laughlin of San Jose.

The entertainment is being sponsored by the Country Woman's club and the Pundita Circle for the benefit of the Student Loan Fund being raised and disbursed through a committee from the County Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Laughlin has traveled widely and visited for long periods at Tahiti and Honolulu, at both of which places she has relatives living. Her talk is illustrated with slides and an extensive exhibit of costumes and handcraft of the natives of these interesting islands.

A pioneer clubwoman, she is giving her services for the benefit of this work. She is a writer, lecturer and travel advisor and has had wide experience in addressing all kinds of organizations and public assemblies.

Tickets will be on sale at very reasonable prices and both adults and children will find the evening to be one of entertainment and benefit.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR DIES IN OAKLAND

The Rev. W. C. Robbins, for many pears pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, in Campbell and elsewhere, died Sunday in Oakland after a brief illness. He had been residing in Oakland since his retirement from the local pulpit several years ago.

Funeral services were held this morning at the Melrose M. E. church in Oakland and was followed by services and interment at Oak Hill cemetery in San Jose.

Rev. Robbins, a native of Cornwall, England, was 69 years of age, and had spent most of his life in the ministry. He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robbins Peck of Oakland.

HANGER HOUSE TO BE MOVED SOON

The moving of the F. G. Hanger house will start as soon as weather conditions permit. The barn is already being razed and another one will be built on the new location. In last week's Press it was stated the house would be moved back 300 yards. It should have read 300 feet. The new road, which necessitates the moving, will eliminate the three curves on the Los Gatos highway near Dry Creek road. Many accidents have occurred here, particularly on the Hanger corner. The road as rebuilt will run directly through the Hanger place.

Mrs. Rose Hanger is visiting in Sacramento, but will return Monday to complete all details in connection with the moving of the house.

Miss Mary Rodeck and Mrs. Williams drove to Gilroy Thursday where they joined Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rodeck and daughter and journeyed to Fresno for Christmas. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Antrim. Miss Mary will extend her visit for two weeks or more.

SEA SCOUTS TO HOLD ANNUAL COURT OF HONOR

The Campbell Sea Scouts will hold a court of honor Sunday evening at 7:30 at the Congregational church. At the court, quaretrmasters' ratings will be given to Elmer Sundquist and Ivan Nelson. This is the highest rating that can be obtained by a sea scout and it is won by but few members. Campbell is fortunate in having more sea scout quartermasters than any other similar organization in the country. Despite being 16 miles from the nearest water, the local organization has continually taken national awards and has the second highest rating in the nation.

Following the court of honor, two reels of the scout activities will be shown. The pictures were taken by the scouts themselves on their numerous cruises in and out of the bay, and will show the sort of work they do. The pictures were taken with their own equipment.

The court of honor and the showing of the films are open to the public. Parents are particularly invited to attend.

GRANGE DISCUSSES NEW BUILDING

The Orchard City Grange held its regular meeting last Tuesday evening with the worthy master, W. H. Woodbury, presiding over the business session. A free-for-all discussion was held concerning the building of a new hall. Funds for this purpose have been accumulating for the past several years, and the necessary figure has almost been reached. Bazaars, card parties, food sales and other activities have helped to raise the funds. All members are urged to be present at the next meeting, Tuesday, Jan. 5, as the plans will be thoroughly discussed at that time.

Storm Floods District In Week's Downpour

MORE RAINS PREDICTED

Rain and more rain.

Such was the information given by the United States Weather Bureau to an already drenched district. With a new storm approaching from the Gulf of Alaska, storm notices are being sent out to all points on the coast. The new storm is gathering in severity and is expected to reach here some time Wednesday morning.

Local Rainfall Figures
Season to date	13.40
Normal to date	3.96
Last year to date	1.07
Total normal annual (July thru June)	13.18
December to date	11.19
Dec. 20 to date (7 a. m.)	9.34

The recent storm surpassed all records for the last dozen years, with roads flooded, rivers reaching new high levels, bridges washed out, and dams bursting. The precipitation is general throughout the state, holding up practically all east and west bound trains over the Sierras, stopping all air mail planes for the past eight days—the longest delay since the air mail was inaugurated—and closing numerous highways.

Local figures show a greater rain fall so far this season than the normal for the entire year. According to C. E. York, local meteorologist, the figures show a total of 13.40 inches of rain up to early this morning as compared with a normal to date of but 3.96 and an annual normal of but 13.1. During the recent storm over nine inches of rain fell in nine days, breaking all available records for a like period.

Local conditions, while not dangerous are approaching maximum carrying capacity and in several places, small creeks have been transformed into raging streams, overflowing the low banks into the surrounding lowlands. Ranchers in the San Tomas district have demanded an investigation into an alleged deliberate breaking of the levee on the San Tomas creek by a rancher in order to save his own property from damage. The creek had been threatening to innundate several homes near Rincon avenue until the levee was cut, or gave way of its own accord. As a result of the break the water spread unchecked, covering an area of two or more miles. The break occurred at a place bordering on the property of Antone Furtado who, with his son worked all day Sunday keeping the Rincon avenue bridge cleared of the debris, which included everything from stoves and beds to automobile frames and gas tanks. On a rush call, Joe Gomez and a crew of men finally succeeded in returning the swollen creek to its channel with the aid of a levee of dirt-filled sacks.

Rail Service Delayed

The railroad trestle south of here was badly damaged by the rain-swollen Los Gatos creek and and caused all Peninsula railway service on the San Jose-Campbell-Los Gatos line to be routed over the bus lines. Pile drivers have been working to get the trestle in repair and to prevent further damage.

Train service to Santa Cruz was held up for several days while a large crew of men were clearing the tracks of slides in the Glenwood re-

SPEED RECORDS EXPECTED TO FALL IN AUTO RACES

Oakland, Dec. 29—Jupiter Pluvius forced the knights of the roaring road entered in the three-event auto racing program at the Oakland Speedway Dec. 13 to keep off the track on that date, but they're all set to do battle Sunday afternoon and close followers of the speed sport predict that they'll more than make up for their enforced lay-off by establishing a least three new American dirt track recards.

Forty-five cars and drivers have already entered the program, which includes time trials, a 20-mile consolation race for drivers not fast enough to qualify for the main event, and a 100-mile classic open to the 18 fastest cars.

A glance over the entry list shows that the greatest drivers in the country are entered, chief among whom are Lou Schneider, 1931 Indianapolis 500-mile race winner and this year's national champion; Billy Arnold, who copped the Indianapolis classic and the national title a year ago; Ralph Hepburn, third place man at Indianapolis Memorial Day; Ernie Triplett, 1931 Pacific coast champion; Babe Stapp, who finished third in the 1930 European Grand Prix; Bryan Saulpaugh of Rock Island, Ill.; Wild Bill Cummings of Indianapolis, Gus Schrader of Indianapolis, Stubby Stubblefield and Chet Gardner.

Saulpaugh, Cummings, Stapp, Triplett, Hepburn, Schneider and Arnold appear to be the outstanding threats for first money in the 100-mile main event, while Lou Moore, winner of the Syracuse, New York, and Altoona, Pennsylvania, national championship races this summer, is rated the "dark horse."

The first four drivers are of the "knock-down-and-drag-out" type, whose heavy feet will play an important part in setting the early pace. Hepburn, Schneider and Arnold, however, will be the strongest threats for checkered flag honors in the final 50 miles of the battle of speed, endurance and daring.

Senate Ratifies the Hoover War Debt Moratorium After Warm Debate—Woman Made Member of Arms Parley Delegation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SIXTY-NINE senators voting in the affirmative, some with reluctance, the senate ratified the Hoover moratorium on intergovernmental debts after several days of hectic debate. Twelve members, equally divided between the two parties, were recorded in opposition. The Republicans, all listed as insurgents, were Frazier, Johnson, Norbeck, Norris, Nye and Schall. The Democrats who voted no were Bulow, Caraway, Connally, Dill, McKellar and Thomas.

Sen. Johnson

In view of the pledges President Hoover had received in advance, the fight against ratification was admittedly hopeless, but Senator Johnson of California and several others insisted, nevertheless, on voicing at length their objections to the resolution. Johnson in particular was bitter in his denunciation of Mr. Hoover's course in this matter, criticizing him for not giving due notice that the moratorium as originally proposed had to be altered to suit France. He repeatedly charged that the President had abandoned the former American policy and had agreed to the linking of war debts and reparations. McKellar of Tennessee, Gore of Oklahoma, and one or two others were scarcely less outspoken that Johnson in their opposition.

The senate rejected half a dozen amendments and adopted the resolution as it came from the house which had passed it by a vote of 317 to 100 after adding an amendment which puts congress on record as not committing itself to any policy of cancellation or revision of war debts.

Both house and senate, having settled the moratorium matter, adjourned until January 4. Senator Borah made a futile effort to have the date for reconvening changed to January 28, as the President had recommended.

About the time the President was signing the moratorium resolution word came from Basel that the Young plan advisory committee had reported that Germany will be unable to resume payment of the conditional reparations when the moratorium terminates next July, and that "adjustment of all reparations and war debts to the troubled situation of the world" would be essential. The next reparations conference is to open at The Hague on January 18.

BECAUSE of difficulty in obtaining foreign exchange for debt remittances, the government of Hungary declared a moratorium for one year on foreign debts. The decree stipulated that public and private debts for which sufficient foreign currency is not available must be paid in pengoes to the Hungarian National bank which will hold the money as trustee for the creditors. The pengo is the Hungarian monetary unit.

In order that trade and commerce may not halt, the National bank will put at the disposal of Hungarian citizens such sums as are needed to carry on and also will cover service on the so-called credit-freezing agreement.

WHILE congress was debating the moratorium, the senate finance committee continued its inquiry into the sale of foreign securities in this country. Several eminent bankers were heard, the most interesting in some ways being Otto H. Kahn, head of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. For hours Mr. Kahn held forth, explaining the intricacies of international finance and describing vividly the crisis in world economics.

Otto H. Kahn

Although Mr. Kahn made clear that he was opposed to either cancellation or permanent reduction of the war debts owed the United States, he declared that the emergency required temporary adjustments to lighten the burden of German reparations and European war debts. Neither justice nor expediency could lead to insistence at this moment on demands for payments to the full letter of agreements effected in the past, Mr. Kahn said.

In an outline of his own attitude, in vigorous terms, Mr. Kahn, said, "if it were possible to find a way by which all these reparations and war debts, which hang around the neck of the world like a millstone, could be taken out and sunk in the ocean, I should welcome it."

PRESIDENT HOOVER announced that Gen. Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to Great Britain, would head the American delegation to the world conference on disarmament in Geneva. He then named as a member of the delegation Dr. Mary Emma Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college, the first of her sex to be given such a position by a first-class power. She has been an active worker for international peace and an advocate of navy reduction. Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia, Democrat and member of the senate foreign affairs and naval committees, already had been named as a delegate.

The President and Mr. Stimson will direct the course of the American delegation from Washington. The mission will go armed with secret instructions and will keep in close touch with the State department.

DURING consideration of President Hoover's proposed $500,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation by the senate banking and currency subcommittee, Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, praised the inclusion of the railroads in the category of institutions to be aided as necessary at this "critical time," Banker witnesses heard did not oppose this inclusion.

Daniel Willard

Mr. Willard told the committee that the railroads throughout the country had $1,000,000,000 in maturities falling due within the next three years and no money to pay them. His own railroad, he admitted, must meet $8,000,000 worth of maturities in May; $35,000,000 more in August.

"It would be a satisfaction to me," said Mr. Willard, "and I think it would be in the public interest, if, when these securities mature next summer, we could borrow at a reasonable rate of interest from the government. And, of course, it would be to our interest to pay back as quickly as possible. It would be a good deal for the government with a profit, and the hazard would be well nigh negligible.

The alternative, he pointed out, would be for the railroads to borrow from other sources and at "stress prices."

Senator Couzens of Michigan broke in at one point with the assertion that it was folly for a board of "non-experts in railroad affairs" to pass judgment on loans to railroads; and praised the success of the transportation act of 1920 with its revolving fund of $300,000,000 administered by "railroad experts." He intimated that he will seek to revive a part of that act of 1920.

SENATOR GERALD NYE of North Dakota, on behalf of his committee on campaign expenditures reported to the senate that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., had violated the corrupt practices act in his handling of campaign funds in 1928. The committee also declared that a considerable part of the $133,000 received by the bishop and his anti-Smith Democratic committee found its way into his personal accounts.

Bishop Cannon

Bishop Cannon, it was found, had personally handled the greater share of the money. He handled it, so investigators discovered, through no less than ten bank accounts, from and to which funds were transferred in a maze of transactions. All told, the committee learned, $18,300 in political contributions was transferred to the bishop's private accounts and remained there until long after the election.

DISPATCHES from Paris stated that France was on the point of signing two important trade treaties. One is with Germany and provides that that country shall supply France with all the nitrates she needs for the next nine months. The other is with Russia and in it France pledges herself never to join any movement to boycott any class of Russian goods or refuse to supply the Soviets with any materials they may need.

France's stock of nitrates, an essential for the manufacture of war munitions, is said to be dangerously depleted, and it is held as curious that Germany should undertake to supply the deficiency and, through other provisions of the treaty, to aid in building up the French nitrate industry to a point where it will be independent of the Germans.

In the pact with Russia both nations agree to commit no act of aggression against each other and not to take recourse to war; and if a third country commits an act of aggression against one signatory, the other signatory promises to observe neutrality and give no help to the aggressor nation.

PREMIER MUSSOLINI of Italy suffered a severe loss in the death of his beloved brother Arnaldo, director of the newspaper Popolo d'Italia and able assistant of the duce in the Fascist regime. He died suddenly in Milan after an attack of angina pectoris.

CONVENIENTLY dubbing as "bandits" all the Chinese in Manchuria who oppose them, the Japanese are merrily proceeding with their war. Close censorship leaves the outside world in some doubt as to what is being done, but enough leaks out to make it certain that Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander, is carrying on some large-scale operations. Another considerable body of troops from Japan arrived in Tientsin, being quartered there to prevent the Chinese pouring into that city if Chinchow falls into Japanese hands. The American legation in China warned Americans residing along the Peiping-Mukden railroad to evacuate to Tientsin.

Gen. Honjo

General Honjo sent a force of 600 infantry and railroad guards northward from Mukden. These troops were instructed to seize the towns of Kangping, Changtu and Fakumen with the object of sweeping out 7,000 Chinese troops who are said to be menacing Japanese lines of communications on both the South Manchuria railway and the line running northwest from Ssupingkai through Chenchiatun and Taonan. Fakumen was taken on Tuesday.

CHINESE internal affairs, meanwhile, were in a terrible muss and the country was without a government. Every minister and vice minister resigned, and the nation was without an official to voice a protest against the Japanese aggression. The entire government quit despite an appeal from Gen. Chen Ming-shu, acting head of the executive council, to stay on the job.

FOLLOWING the example of Great Britain, Australia has ousted its Labor government and Prime Minister James Scullin and his cabinet have been replaced by Joseph A. Lyons as premier and a coalition government made up of members of the United Australia and the Country parties. Lyons had been treasurer in Scullin's cabinet but had broken with his Labor colleagues. In the dominion parliament the coalition has now 52 seats out of 76; the Laborites have 13, the Extreme Laborites have 9, and Independents, 2.

WHETHER or not Dwight F. Davis is to return to the Philippines as governor general was not decided during the week. Mr. Davis arrived in Washington and had a long conference with the President, but did not hand in his resignation as had been expected because Mrs. Davis is unable to live in a tropical climate. Coming from the White House, he said to correspondents:

D. F. Davis

"There is nothing I can say about the future except that the information I have received about Mrs. Davis since my arrival in the United States is not encouraging. I will go to St. Louis for Christmas and, later, to Paris. You understand I am on leave at the request of the secretary of war to familiarize myself with the sentiment in the United States on the Philippine question."

LOSS of patronage is not the only trouble Representative Louis McFadden of Pennsylvania faces as a result of his fierce attack on President Hoover. He may even lose his seat in the house at the next election. Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania, has announced that she will contest the Republican nomination in the Fifteenth district with McFadden, and the latter will not receive the support of the Republican state organization, whether or not it is given to Mrs. Pinchot. Back in 1928 the lady and McFadden contested the nomination.

McFadden was notified by the Post Office department that he had been cut off from all patronage in his district. Postmaster General Brown wrote him stating that his speech against the President had convinced him that his advice concerning appointments would not be helpful to the department.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Curry entertained members of their family at a delightful Christmas dinner at their home on Parr avenue Friday. "Santa Claus" and a beautifully decorated tree were features of the day. Gifts were exchanged by members of the family.

The first meeting of the Country Woman's club for 1932 will be held Monday, Jan. 4. The topic for the program hour is "Modern Music Since the World War," with Mrs. L. T. Lenox, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Bertha H. Jackson, Mrs. E. C. Merrill, Mrs. L. C. Shank and Mrs. A. B. Townsend.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hummel and son John were members of a family gathering Friday. Dinner was enjoyed at the Hotel Sainte Claire and the remainder of the day spent at the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Hablutzel in San Jose.

Bernard and Philip Robson went down to Bakersfield last Monday to spend the holiday vacation with Mr. and Mrs. George R. Stray, planning to return some time this week.

STAMPS ISSUED FOR WASHINGTON ANNIVERSARY

Commemorating the bicentennial anniversary of George Washington's birth, the post office department has issued a new series of stamps for 1932. Old stamps up to ten cents have been recalled for a year and the new stamps will be issued in all denominations from one-half to ten cents, each with a different picture of "The Father of His Country." This will apply to the stamped envelopes and post cards as well as the stamps. These new stamps will be issued all through 1932.

Collectors may get any quantities of the set of stamps from one-half to 10 cents inclusive, as they will be put on sale Jan. 2. First sales are usually preferable to collectors.

Bell System Switchboards Link Teletypewriters in Wide Network

Above is shown a new type of switchboard, where teletypewriters are interconnected for the transmission of written information just as telephone calls are switched for voice communication. The operator is making a connection at the switchboard, in response to the call which has just come in on the teletypewriter in front of her. In the oval is a teletypewriter in use.

The recent development of a switchboard to interconnect teletypewriters—machines which send and receive typewritten messages electrically by wire—now makes possible the exchange of written information among subscribers on a nation-wide basis, with the same speed and in much the same way that present telephone switchboards interconnect one telephone user with another for local or long distance conversations anywhere in the Bell System.

Send and Receive at Will

A subscriber who wishes to send a typewritten message to another subscriber to teletypewriter service, wherever located, simply types out on his own machine the call number of the other subscriber. This number appears instantly before the operator at the teletypewriter switchboard, and she establishes, through the switchboard, the connection between the two teletypewriters. Once the two subscribers are connected by wire in this way, they may send and receive typed messages as desired, at the speed of electrical communication and without regard to distance.

Resemble Ordinary Typewriters

Teletypewriters look and are operated like ordinary typewriters. But as each key of one machine is struck, in the course of typing a message, it sends an electrical impulse over the wire which causes the other machine to imprint the same letter. Thus, a message typed on the one machine is also typed on the other simultaneously, and identical copies are produced on both machines. Carbon copies may be made, forms may be filled in, and the machine may be used, in connection with the service, for practically all the other purposes for which an ordinary typewriter is used.

CURRENT COMMENT

It is this sound theory that is causing great industries to reduce dividends and trim salaries without interfering with wage scales. President Hoover's steadfast advocacy of the theory illustrates his remarkable economic foresight. The courageous action of great corporations that are following his advice emphasizes again their faith in the ability of the captalistic system to cure its own abuses and their confidence in an early return of better times.

gion. Service has been resumed.

The San Jacinto creek has risen to the top of its banks in the last 24 hours and if the new storm materializes, it is likely to overflow into the surrounding territory.

The wells in this district are filling at the rate of one inch an hour since Sunday, assuring good well conditions for future irrigating. Ranchers have hailed the storm with delight and claim that the benefits have far exceeded the damage up to date. Further rain is more liable to cause heavier damages. Unprecedented snow in the Sierras, totalling in many cases above 200 inches, have assured a reserve supply sufficient for summer irrigation.

Most local highways have been kept open and although flooded are in good condition. The Saratoga road to the summit was reopened after being closed for several days. Travel over the Santa Cruz mountain road is passable again after several dozen large and small landslides, though "proceed with caution" signs have been posted. The San Francisco highway near Redwood City has been flooded for the first time in 15 years, but according to latest reports the road was still open.
